I. INTRODUCTION

A. COMPANY BACKGROUND

Based in Washington, D.C., ACDI/VOCA is a nonprofit international development organization that delivers technical and management assistance in agribusiness, financial services, enterprise development, community development and food security in order to promote broad-based economic growth and vibrant civil society. For more information, go to www.acdivoca.org.

B. PROGRAM BACKGROUND

ACDI/VOCA is implementing the Transforming Market Systems (TMS) Activity of the United States Agency for International Development (USAID). The purpose of TMS is to promote competitive, resilient, and inclusive market systems that provide greater economic opportunities to incorporate vulnerable populations to reduce incentives to migrate.

TMS applies a systems development approach to address the root causes behind the vicious circles that marginalize people and businesses and identifies leverage points that lead to new virtuous ways of doing business and improved economic opportunities. This will result in a sustainable increase in income, through more business, more sales and more jobs for Hondurans, while contributing to building broad-based, long-term economic growth.

The program carries out activities in five components:

1. Value Added Agriculture: Boosting the strengths already present in Honduras to generate long-term economic growth in value chains selected for their high potential to generate jobs.
2. Tourism and Creative Industries: Overcoming the underlying limitations in the development of the tourism sector in Honduras by leveraging the leadership potential of the private sector to become an agent of change in partnership with the public sector at the national, departmental and local destination levels.
3. Entrepreneurship: Contribute to the economic and social growth of Honduras, understanding that MSMEs are the major generators of employment, expansion of market segments, increased production of goods and services and dynamism in the communities where they operate.
4. Business Enabling Environment: Support state modernization strategies and strengthen the capacity of private sector organizations to assume a leadership role in the evaluation, design, and promotion of business-friendly policies.
5. Labor Intermediation: Connect public and private training with employers to align the services offered with the demand for employment in the formal sector and improve linkage systems between workers and potential employers.

II. PURPOSE

Local farming communities in Honduras do not have broad access to key information that can improve their farming practices. The current methods of knowledge dissemination by local organizations are not powerful enough to impact beneficiaries at a significant scale. Being able to provide agricultural knowledge transfer and extension services through context-adapted technological platforms and mechanisms amongst the Honduran agricultural community is key and the objective of this consultancy.

A 2017 assessment by USAID identified a highly fragmented extension system in Honduras which a diverse set of actors are providing formal extension services. NGOs are the greatest contributors to the extension system, followed by technical schools that provide extension activities based on specific crops and markets, and then associations, private sector, and public sector. It is estimated however that more than 80% of these extension services, regardless of provider, are financed by international cooperation.

The field school model is one of the most used forms by extension service providers. This approach uses demonstration plots, field workdays, and individual and group visits as ways to share knowledge. Many providers also use social mobilizers, community facilitators and farmer-to-farmer trainers to increase the reach of their services. Most extension workers use printed or online technical materials. It is uncommon for extension workers to use audiovisual materials or apps in extension.

Research¹ funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation on the use of video-based training for rice production in India identified that on the use of video-based training has a substantial and significant effect on farmer technology adoption, yields and profits, especially for so-called ‘marginal’ farmers that otherwise do not receive direct training on a repeated basis. These effects are estimated to increase good agricultural practice adoption and yields by 44% above the control group (if receive no extension).

Video-based training can further complement traditional extension, with observed increases in practice adoption and yields by another 15-20%. Perhaps most importantly, video-based extension can be done at an estimated 18% of the cost of traditional extension. Researchers at the Gates Foundation and Digital Green identified the key benefits of the video-based methodology as (1) reducing the variability (and sometimes poor quality) of extension trainers’ instruction quality (2) is narrated by local farmers and women from communities and mediated by a local village representative – so is more likely to influence behavior change and (3) the method is interactive and thus increases the viewer’s comprehension of the practices being demonstrated.

This consultancy will build the capacity of local partners to implement community video extension models. While not a replacement for group-based, farmer-field-schools, this model is a complement for farmers that ‘graduate’ from those schools but need access to continued extension and for the many ‘marginal’ farmers who are otherwise excluded from participating in FFS-based extension system. The community video extension model further has the potential to open a new mechanism for farmer-to-farmer extension.

A. SCOPE OF WORK

The consultant is to build the capacity of local partner organizations and individuals on low-cost video production as a solution to demonstrate and teach the agricultural and livestock good agricultural practices and close the gap by farmers in accessing vital information that is needed to adopt new technologies, improve farm yields, and increase household incomes.

Task 1. Provide a four-day video education workshop for local partners staff, intensively covering video production and dissemination in communities using community video approach. The consultant or consultancy firm should provide a four-day video education workshop with an accompanying curriculum for ACIDI/VOCA Honduras staff and local implementing partners in Honduras. This should cover video production and community outreach, video production and dissemination in communities. The workshop should be a very community-driven process. During the workshop, the consultant should lead the creation of 3 short videos alongside ACIDI/VOCA Honduras and local partners. Each participant should experience each step of the video production process and learn how to showcase the videos in the most effective way at community level. The videos should be contextually and regionally appropriate, and should include local languages/dialects, role models, testimonials, and lectures from respected community figures.

Task 2. Procure 5 video production kits to distribute to the local implementing partners to implement community video approach. The consultant will provide ACIDI/VOCA Honduras, and the implementing partners the equipment necessary for the in-country workshop. The video equipment may be procured in the United States or locally in Honduras. If procured in the United States, the consultant should coordinate with ACIDI/VOCA for customs clearances. An estimation of the cost per unit is in the table below. In the proposal, the offer may propose other equipment with corresponding costing and technical justification. No single item should exceed $500 in unit cost. The equipment should be transferred to local organizations with an official letter and signature by the receiving organization with copies provided by document.

Item	Units	Est. Price	Total Est. Cost
Cordless video projector 1,000 lumens	5	$440	$2,200
Speakers	5	$100	$500
Audio Cable	5	$6	$30
Memory-MicroSD Card-16GB	10	$10	$100
Memory-SD to USB Reader	10	$10	$100
Video Camera with Mic input jack	5	$250	$3750
Microphone	5	$40	$200
Tripod	5	$30	$150
Earbuds	5	$10	$50

Task 3. Provide one-year remote capacity development program to provide technical and troubleshooting support to the people creating videos on the ground in Honduras. This remote capacity building program for ACIDI/VOCA Honduras and local implementing partners should include monthly working sessions with local video trainers in-country and on-call Zoom or Skype sessions with video trainers as needed for support and troubleshooting. The consultant should acquire the contracted services of local, in-country Honduras video trainers to provide additional support as needed to local partner organization video trainers in producing at least 10 videos within the first six months after the video education workshop is completed.
